Disposable income is the sum of all taxable and tax-free income minus taxes and negative transfers.

The income includes gains/losses, that is, the gain/loss arising from a sale (realization) of assets, for example, stocks, mutual funds or real estate.

Type of household gives the composition of the household and is broken down into Single (including Living alone), Cohabiting and Other household, all with or without children.

The Percentage of all refers to the mean and median value for different groups reported as the value in relation to the mean och median value of the whole population (at the national level). For example, 126% means that a certain group has a disposable income that is 26 percent higher than the value of the whole population and 83% means that the income is 17 percent lower than the value of the whole population.

The population is delimited to so-called full-year households, which refers to households where the adults have been registered in Sweden at both the beginning and the end of the year. Read more about the delimitations in the statistics quality declaration on the Statistics Sweden website.

Income from wages, salaries and pensions from the Nordic countries is included for people who are registered in Sweden. As of the publication of the income year 2020, the statistics for the years 2011-2019 have been revised.
